

Special Issue on
Industrial Economics and Sustainable Development
Call for Papers

Industrial Economics and Sustainable Development examines the relationship between industrial growth and environmental sustainability, focusing on how industries can achieve economic success while minimizing their ecological footprint. This field explores strategies for integrating sustainable practices into industrial processes, such as energy efficiency, green technologies, and circular economy models. It also addresses the economic implications of environmental policies, the role of innovation in driving sustainability, and the challenges of balancing industrial expansion with ecological conservation. By combining economic analysis with environmental goals, this area aims to foster long-term industrial growth that supports both economic development and the health of the planet.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles on exploring Industrial Economics and Sustainable Development. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Carbon footprint reduction in industry
- Circular economy in industrial systems
- Corporate social responsibility (CSR) in industry
- Eco-innovation and industrial technology
- Eco-labeling and sustainable product certification
- Energy efficiency in industry
- Environmental economics in industrial development
- Environmental impact assessment
- Green finance for industrial projects
- Green manufacturing
- Industrial policy and environmental regulation
- Industrial resilience and climate change adaptation
- Industrial waste management and recycling
- Low-carbon industrialization
- Renewable energy integration in industrial processes
- Sustainable industrial clusters
- Sustainable industrial practices
- Sustainable resource management in industries
- Sustainable supply chain management
- Technology-driven sustainability in manufacturing

Authors should read over the journal's For Authors carefully before submission. Prospective authors should submit an electronic copy of their complete manuscript through the journal's Paper Submission System.

Please kindly specify the “Special Issue” under your manuscript title. The research field “Special Issue - Industrial Economics and Sustainable Development” should be selected during your submission.
