Special Issue on Economic and Business Studies

Call for Papers

Economic and Business Studies examines the principles, practices, and dynamics of economies and businesses at local, national, and global levels. It explores topics such as market structures, entrepreneurship, management, finance, trade, innovation, and organizational behavior, integrating insights from economics, business administration, and management sciences. The theme emphasizes understanding how economic policies, business strategies, and market forces influence growth, competitiveness, sustainability, and social well-being. By combining theoretical analysis with empirical research, it aims to provide practical solutions and informed decision-making for economic development and business performance in a rapidly changing global environment.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles on exploring Economic and Business Studies. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Accounting and auditing
- Behavioral economics
- Business management and administration
- Business strategy and competitiveness
- Corporate finance and investment
- Economic development and policy
- Entrepreneurship and innovation
- Financial economics and markets
- International economics and trade
- Macroeconomics
- Microeconomics
- Marketing and consumer behavior
- Operations and supply chain management
- Organizational behavior and human resources
- Risk management and business analytics
- Sustainable business and corporate social responsibility

Authors should read over the journal's For Authors carefully before submission. Prospective authors should submit an electronic copy of their complete manuscript through the journal's Paper Submission System.
