

Special Issue on Global Business and Management

Call for Papers

Global Business and Management aims to explore emerging theories, strategies, and practices that shape business operations in an increasingly interconnected global economy. It focuses on key issues such as international market expansion, cross-border management, global supply chains, multinational enterprise strategy, digital transformation, and sustainable business practices. The issue welcomes interdisciplinary research examining how organizations navigate complex international environments, cultural diversity, technological innovation, and evolving economic policies. Contributions may include theoretical developments, empirical studies, and practical insights that advance understanding of global competitiveness, international collaboration, and effective management in dynamic global markets.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles on exploring Global Business and Management. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Cross-cultural management
- Global business sustainability
- Global corporate governance
- Global entrepreneurship
- Global financial management
- Global marketing management
- Global operations management
- Global supply chain management
- International business law
- International business strategy
- International human resource management
