

Special Issue on Business, Economics, and Management

Call for Papers

Business, Economics, and Management is an interdisciplinary field that examines the principles, practices, and strategies underlying economic activity, business operations, and organizational management. It encompasses a broad range of topics, including economic theory and policy, business strategy, entrepreneurship, finance, marketing, accounting, human resource management, organizational behavior, operations management, innovation, and international business. The field integrates theoretical perspectives, empirical research, quantitative methods, and practical applications to understand market dynamics, improve organizational performance, support effective decision-making, and address emerging challenges in the global business and economic environment.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles on exploring Business, Economics, and Management. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Business strategy
- Economics and policy
- Entrepreneurship and innovation
- Finance and investment
