

Special Issue on English Literature and Culture

Call for Papers

English Literature and Culture explores literary works written in English alongside the cultural, historical, social, and intellectual contexts that shape their production and interpretation. The field examines a wide range of genres, periods, and traditions, including poetry, drama, fiction, and nonfiction, while engaging with critical theories, comparative perspectives, and interdisciplinary approaches. It also investigates themes such as identity, language, gender, race, colonialism, globalization, and digital culture, fostering a deeper understanding of literary expression, cultural diversity, and the evolving role of English literature in contemporary society.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles on exploring English Literature and Culture. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- English literature
- Literary theory
- Literary criticism
- Comparative literature
- Cultural studies
- Postcolonial studies
- Victorian literature
- Modernist literature
- Contemporary literature
- Shakespeare studies
- Poetry studies
- Drama and theatre
- Fiction studies
- Gender and literature
- Digital humanities
- World literature

Authors should read over the journal's For Authors carefully before submission. Prospective authors should submit an electronic copy of their complete manuscript through the journal's Paper Submission System.

Please kindly specify the “Special Issue” under your manuscript title. The research field “Special Issue - English Literature and Culture” should be selected during your submission.
