
Special Issue on Case Reports in Oncology

Call for Papers

Case Reports in Oncology focus on detailed clinical descriptions of individual cancer cases that present rare diseases, unusual presentations, novel diagnostic approaches, innovative treatments, unexpected outcomes, or unique adverse effects. These reports contribute to medical knowledge by sharing real-world clinical experiences, generating hypotheses for further research, and supporting evidence-based practice in oncology by highlighting lessons that may inform diagnosis, management, and future studies.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles on Case Reports in Oncology. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Rare cancers and tumors
- Unusual clinical presentations
- Novel diagnostic techniques
- Surgical oncology case studies
- Radiation oncology case reports
- Targeted therapy case reports
- Immunotherapy outcomes and toxicities
- Treatment-resistant or refractory cancers
- Cancer-related complications and comorbidities
- Imaging case reports
- Diagnostic dilemmas and unusual pathology
- Integrative oncology and complementary therapies
- Precision medicine and genomic case reports
- Cancer in special populations
- Metastatic patterns and mechanisms
- Palliative and end-of-life care innovations
- Survivorship and quality of life
