
Special Issue on Skin Health

Call for Papers

Skin Health focuses on the maintenance, protection, and treatment of the body's largest organ through advances in dermatological science, clinical care, and biomedical research. This field covers topics such as skin barrier function, inflammatory skin disorders, wound healing, regenerative therapies, cosmetic dermatology, microbiome interactions, and anti-aging strategies. Research also explores environmental influences, ultraviolet protection, oxidative stress, personalized skincare, and innovative therapeutic technologies for improving skin condition and overall well-being. With growing interest in both medical and aesthetic applications, skin health remains an important area in healthcare, biotechnology, and pharmaceutical development.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles on exploring Skin Health. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Dermatological therapeutics
- Skin barrier function
- Wound healing technologies
- Inflammatory skin disorders
- Cosmetic dermatology
- Regenerative skin medicine
- Skin microbiome research
- Anti-aging therapies
- Pigmentation disorder studies
- Transdermal delivery systems
- Ultraviolet protection research
- Skin tissue engineering
- Personalized skincare approaches
- Dermatopathology analysis
- Aesthetic medical treatments
- Bioactive skincare compounds

Authors should read over the journal's For Authors carefully before submission. Prospective authors should submit an electronic copy of their complete manuscript through the journal's Paper Submission System.

Please kindly specify the “Special Issue” under your manuscript title. The research field “Special Issue - Skin Health” should be selected during your submission.
