

Special Issue on Gynecologic Oncology

Call for Papers

Gynecologic Oncology mainly focuses on cancers that start in women's reproductive organs. These organs are located in the pelvis which is the area below the belly and in between the hip bones. All women are at risk for gynecologic cancers. When the cancers are found earlier, treatment is relatively more effective.

This special issue will publish manuscripts related to epidemiology, diagnosis, molecular & genetic aspects, management, surgical techniques, chemotherapy, targeted molecular therapies, and quality of life of the following women's cancers:

- Cervical cancer
- Cervical intraepithelial neoplasia
- Endometrial cancer

- Teratoma
- Vaginal cancer
- Vulval cancer
- Cancers of fallopian tube
- Cancers of uterus
