
Special Issue on Human Capital and Economics

Call for Papers

Human Capital and Economics is a field of study that examines how individuals' knowledge, skills, education, health, and experience contribute to economic productivity, income distribution, and long-term growth. Rooted in economic theory, it views investment in education, training, and health as forms of capital accumulation that enhance labor efficiency and innovation. Research in this area explores the links between human capital formation and outcomes such as employment, wages, technological progress, inequality, and national competitiveness, as well as the role of public policy in fostering inclusive and sustainable economic development.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles on exploring Human Capital and Economics. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Demographic economics and population dynamics
- Economics of education
- Education finance and investment
- Education quality and learning outcomes
- Gender, human capital, and labor market outcomes
- Health economics and human capital
- Human capital and economic growth
- Human capital and sustainable development
- Human capital measurement and evaluation
- Human capital policy and public economics
- Human capital theory
- Income distribution and wage inequality
- Innovation, productivity, and knowledge economies
- Labor economics
- Migration, brain drain, and brain gain
- Returns to education and skill premiums
- Social capital and institutional economics
- Training, lifelong learning, and adult education
- Workforce development and skills formation
- Youth employment and school-to-work transitions

Authors should read over the journal's For Authors carefully before submission. Prospective authors should submit an electronic copy of their complete manuscript through the journal's Paper Submission System.

Please kindly specify the “Special Issue” under your manuscript title. The research field “Special Issue - *Human Capital and Economics” should be selected during your submission.

Special Issue Timetable:

Submission Deadline	May 28th, 2026
Publication Date	July 2026

Guest Editor:

Prof. Md. Shahriar Parvez

CEO & Founder, Independent Perception and Research Hub (IPRH), Bangladesh

Associate Professor, City University Bangladesh, Bangladesh

For further questions or inquiries, please contact Editorial Assistant at jhrss@scirp.org.