

Special Issue on
Human Capital and Economic Development
Call for Papers

Human Capital and Economic Development explores the role of knowledge, skills, education, health, innovation, and workforce capabilities in promoting economic growth and improving societal well-being. The field examines how investments in human capital influence productivity, employment, income distribution, entrepreneurship, technological advancement, and long-term economic development. It also addresses labor markets, education and training, demographic change, health economics, social mobility, inequality, and workforce development. By integrating perspectives from economics, education, management, sociology, and public policy, this field provides insights into how countries and organizations can strengthen human capabilities, enhance economic resilience, and achieve inclusive and sustainable development.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles on exploring Human Capital and Economic Development. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Human capital
- Economic development
- Education economics
- Labor economics
- Workforce development
- Skills development
- Health economics
- Productivity growth
- Employment dynamics
- Income inequality
- Social mobility
- Innovation economics
- Entrepreneurship development
- Demographic economics
- Sustainable development
- Development policy

Authors should read over the journal's For Authors carefully before submission. Prospective authors should submit an electronic copy of their complete manuscript through the journal's Paper Submission System.

Please kindly specify the “Special Issue” under your manuscript title. The research field “Special Issue - *Human Capital and Economic Development” should be selected during your submission.

Special Issue Timetable:

Submission Deadline	December 16th, 2026
Publication Date	February 2027

Guest Editor:

For further questions or inquiries, please contact Editorial Assistant at jhrss@scirp.org.