

Special Issue on Social and Behavioral Sciences

Call for Papers

Behavioral science describes the study of human behavior through the use of systematic experimentation and observation. It deals with the subject of human actions, which often covers the fields of sociology, social and cultural anthropology, psychology, as well as the behavioral aspects of biology, economics, geography, law, and politics. The goal of this special issue is to provide a platform for scientists and academicians all over the world to promote, share, and discuss various new issues and developments in the area of Social and Behavioral Sciences.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles on exploring Social and Behavioral Sciences. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Anthropology
- Behavioral economics
- Cognitive psychology
- Cohort analysis
- Consumer behavior
- Health behavior
- Individual differences
- Industrial/organizational psychology
- Media psychology
- Organizational behavior
- Social psychology

Authors should read over the journal's For Authors carefully before submission. Prospective authors should submit an electronic copy of their complete manuscript through the journal's Paper Submission System.

Please kindly specify the “Special Issue” under your manuscript title. The research field “Special Issue - Social and Behavioral Sciences” should be selected during your submission.
