

Special Issue on Youth Studies

Call for Papers

Youth Studies focuses on understanding and exploring the diverse experiences, challenges, and opportunities that young people encounter during their transition from adolescence to adulthood. It encompasses the study of various aspects of youth development. Youth Studies aims to inform policies and interventions that promote positive youth development and well-being, while recognizing the unique perspectives and agency of young people in shaping their own lives and the society they inhabit. The goal of this special issue is to provide a platform for scientists and academicians all over the world to promote, share, and discuss various new issues and developments of Youth Studies.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles on exploring Youth Studies. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Adolescent psychology
- Adolescent suicide
- Antisocial and criminal behaviour
- Cross-cultural studies
- Gender, class, and ethnicity
- Health and sexuality issues
- Juvenile justice
- Legal construction of adolescence
- Mental and physical health
- Poverty, equity, rights and social development
- Social inequalities
- Social media use and gaming
- Social work
- Substance use and addiction
- Youth culture and popular music

Authors should read over the journal's For Authors carefully before submission. Prospective authors should submit an electronic copy of their complete manuscript through the journal's Paper Submission System.

Please kindly specify the “Special Issue” under your manuscript title. The research field “Special Issue - Youth Studies” should be selected during your submission.
