

Special Issue on Intersections of Education, Culture, and Society

Call for Papers

Intersections of Education, Culture, and Society explores the complex interactions between educational systems, cultural values, and societal change in a globalized world. It aims to foster interdisciplinary dialogue on how education shapes and is shaped by cultural identity, social structures, and technological transformation. Contributions are invited on themes such as multicultural and inclusive education, social equity, global citizenship, cultural sustainability, and educational innovation. By examining these interconnected dimensions, the issue seeks to promote deeper understanding of education's role in advancing cultural dialogue, social cohesion, and sustainable societal development.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles on exploring Intersections of Education, Culture, and Society. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Community-based education
- Comparative education
- Cultural identity and learning
- Curriculum and cultural studies
- Digital culture in education
- Education and social change
- Educational leadership and culture
- Educational policy
- Educational sociology
- Gender and education
- Global citizenship education
- Inclusive education
- Intercultural communication
- Lifelong learning and society
- Multicultural education
- Social justice in education

Authors should read over the journal's For Authors carefully before submission. Prospective authors should submit an electronic copy of their complete manuscript through the journal's Paper Submission System.

Please kindly specify the “Special Issue” under your manuscript title. The research field “Special Issue - *Intersections of Education, Culture, and Society” should be selected during your submission.
