

Special Issue on

Sustainable Development and Environmental Stewardship

Call for Papers

Sustainable Development and Environmental Stewardship focuses on promoting balanced growth that meets present needs without compromising the ability of future generations to thrive. This field emphasizes responsible management of natural resources, reduction of environmental degradation, and the integration of sustainability principles into economic and social development. It explores innovative solutions in areas such as renewable energy, waste reduction, ecosystem protection, and climate resilience. By fostering collaboration across disciplines and encouraging ethical environmental practices, this theme seeks to build a more sustainable, equitable, and resilient world for all.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles on exploring Sustainable Development and Environmental Stewardship. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Biodiversity conservation
- Carbon management
- Circular economy
- Climate adaptation
- Ecosystem restoration
- Environmental education
- Environmental policy
- Green technology
- Pollution control
- Renewable energy
- Resource efficiency
- Sustainable agriculture
- Sustainable transportation
- Urban sustainability
- Waste management
- Water sustainability

Authors should read over the journal's For Authors carefully before submission. Prospective authors should submit an electronic copy of their complete manuscript through the journal's Paper Submission System.

Please kindly specify the “Special Issue” under your manuscript title. The research field “Special Issue - Sustainable Development and Environmental Stewardship” should be selected during your submission.
