Special Issue on
Culture, Identity, and Communication

Call for Papers

Culture, Identity, and Communication addresses the complex relationships among cultural practices, identity formation, and communication across diverse social, linguistic, and global contexts. This interdisciplinary field examines topics such as intercultural communication, cultural identity, media and digital communication, language and society, migration, globalization, social inclusion, and cross-cultural interaction. It also explores how communication shapes individual and collective identities, influences cultural exchange, and addresses contemporary social challenges in an increasingly interconnected world. By integrating theoretical perspectives with empirical research, this field promotes a deeper understanding of cultural diversity, effective communication, and inclusive practices across communities, organizations, and educational settings.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles on exploring Culture, Identity, and Communication. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Cultural studies
- Cultural identity
- Intercultural communication
- Cross-cultural communication
- Media and communication
- Digital communication
- Language and society
- Global communication
- Identity studies
- Social interaction
- Migration studies
- Multiculturalism
- Cultural diversity
- Communication ethics
- Public discourse
- Media representation

Authors should read over the journal's For Authors carefully before submission. Prospective authors should submit an electronic copy of their complete manuscript through the journal's Paper Submission System.

Please kindly specify the “Special Issue” under your manuscript title. The research field “Special Issue - Culture, Identity, and Communication” should be selected during your submission.
