

Special Issue on
Transformation in Society and Industry
Call for Papers

Transformation in Society and Industry explores the dynamic changes reshaping modern economies, organizations, communities, and technological systems. Driven by advances in digital technologies, artificial intelligence, automation, sustainability initiatives, and evolving social structures, both society and industry are undergoing profound transitions that influence governance, employment, innovation, production, and human well-being. This topic examines the opportunities and challenges associated with technological adoption, industrial modernization, organizational change, social innovation, and sustainable development. It encourages interdisciplinary research that investigates how emerging trends and transformative practices can foster resilient, inclusive, and sustainable societies while enhancing industrial competitiveness and economic growth in an increasingly interconnected world.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles on exploring Transformation in Society and Industry. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Digital transformation
- Industrial innovation
