Special Issue on Human Rights and Social Justice

Call for Papers

Human Rights and Social Justice explores the principles of equality, freedom, dignity, and fairness in society. It addresses the protection of fundamental rights, the prevention of discrimination, access to justice, and the promotion of equal opportunities for all individuals and communities. This field also considers the social, political, economic, and legal factors that influence human rights protection and social inclusion, including poverty, gender equality, minority rights, migration, and institutional accountability. Through theoretical analysis, empirical research, and practical approaches, it seeks to advance inclusive policies, strengthen legal protections, and foster a more equitable and just society.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles on exploring Human Rights and Social Justice. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Access to justice and legal aid
- Children's rights and protection
- Disability rights and inclusion
- Economic justice and poverty reduction
- Environmental justice and human rights
- Freedom of expression and civil liberties
- Gender equality and women's rights
- Human rights law
- Human trafficking and exploitation
- Indigenous rights and cultural protection
- International human rights governance
- Labor rights and workers' protection
- Racial justice and discrimination
- Refugee rights and migration
- Social inclusion and minority rights
- Social justice and equality

Authors should read over the journal's For Authors carefully before submission. Prospective authors should submit an electronic copy of their complete manuscript through the journal's Paper Submission System.

Please kindly specify the "Special Issue" under your manuscript title. The research field "Special Issue - *Human Rights and Social Justice" should be selected during your submission.
