

Special Issue on
International Economics, Finance and Global Markets
Call for Papers

International Economics, Finance and Global Markets is an interdisciplinary field examining international trade, global financial systems, capital flows, exchange rates, investment and financial markets. It explores the interactions among economies, institutions, businesses, and investors in an increasingly interconnected world. Research may address global economic policies, international financial stability, emerging markets, cross-border investment, financial innovation, and the economic impacts of globalization and digital transformation.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles on International Economics, Finance and Global Markets. Potential topics include, but are not limited to

- International Trade Theory and Comparative Advantage
