

Special Issue on
Taxation, Public Finance and the Economy
Call for Papers

Taxation, Public Finance and the Economy is an interdisciplinary field examining the role of taxation and government financial policies in shaping economic activity and development. It encompasses tax systems, public expenditure, fiscal policy, government revenue, income distribution, public debt and economic growth. The field applies theoretical, empirical and quantitative approaches to evaluate tax policies, promote efficient resource allocation, address socioeconomic inequalities and support sustainable economic development.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles on Taxation, Public Finance and the Economy. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Tax Policy and Economic Analysis
- Public Finance and Government Expenditure
- Fiscal Policy and Macroeconomic Stability
- Tax Systems and Tax Administration
- International Taxation and Tax Competition
- Corporate Taxation and Business Investment
- Personal Income Taxation and Household Behavior
- Consumption Taxes and Value-Added Tax
