

Special Issue on Economics, Society and Social Issues

Call for Papers

Economics, Society and Social Issues is an interdisciplinary academic field that examines the relationships between economic systems, social structures, and contemporary societal challenges. It explores topics such as poverty, inequality, employment, social welfare, demographic change, education, healthcare and social mobility. By integrating economics with sociology, public policy and related social sciences, the field seeks to understand the economic causes and consequences of social issues and develop effective strategies for inclusive and sustainable development.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles on Economics, Society and Social Issues. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:
