

Special Issue on International Politics

Call for Papers

International politics refers to the global political activities. It is closely related to international relations, national interests, cooperation between countries, and the political dynamics of each country. International politics mainly studies the interactive transnational relations of international actors with the state as the main body, and then discuss all factors that influence this interaction from the political angle of view.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original researches and review articles on exploring international politics. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- International cooperation
- International organizations
- International relations
- International constraints
- International conflicts
- War and peace
- Territorial disputes
- Nuclear crisis
- Terrorism
- Human rights

Authors should read over the journal's For Authors carefully before submission. Prospective authors should submit an electronic copy of their complete manuscript through the journal's Paper Submission System.

Please kindly notice that the “Special Issue” under your manuscript title is supposed to be specified and the research field “Special Issue – *International Politics” should be chosen during your submission.

According to the following timetable:

Submission Deadline	November 29th, 2019
Publication Date	January 2020
