

Special Issue on Political Strategies and Decision-Making

Call for Papers

Political Strategies and Decision-Making examines the processes, structures, and approaches through which political actors, institutions, and governments formulate policies, manage public affairs, and address social, economic, and international challenges. The field encompasses political governance, strategic leadership, policy analysis, diplomatic relations, electoral systems, and public administration, while also exploring the influence of ideology, public opinion, power dynamics, and global political trends on decision-making processes. It promotes interdisciplinary perspectives for understanding effective governance, political stability, conflict resolution, and sustainable policy development in contemporary societies.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles on exploring Political Strategies and Decision-Making. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Political governance
- Public policy analysis
- Comparative politics
- International relations
- Political communication
- Electoral studies
- Strategic leadership
- Public administration
- Diplomatic studies
- Political economy
- Conflict resolution
- Legislative processes
- Governance and institutions
- Political risk management
- Decision science in politics
- Global security studies

Authors should read over the journal's For Authors carefully before submission. Prospective authors should submit an electronic copy of their complete manuscript through the journal's Paper Submission System.

Please kindly specify the “Special Issue” under your manuscript title. The research field “Special Issue - Political Strategies and Decision-Making” should be selected during your submission.
