

Special Issue on
Politics, Culture, and Society

Call for Papers

Politics, Culture, and Society explores the complex relationships between political systems, cultural practices, and social structures in different historical and contemporary contexts. This field examines governance, public policy, social movements, cultural identity, media influence, globalization, and social change. It also investigates how political power and cultural values shape human behavior, institutions, and community development across societies. Through interdisciplinary perspectives, the subject contributes to a deeper understanding of social dynamics, political interaction, and cultural transformation in an increasingly interconnected world.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles on exploring Politics, Culture, and Society. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Political sociology
- Cultural studies
- Social anthropology
- Comparative politics
- Public policy analysis
- Media and communication
- International relations
- Social movement studies
- Political philosophy
- Gender and society
- Globalization studies
- Human rights studies
- Cultural identity research
- Governance and institutions
- Religion and society
- Political communication

Authors should read over the journal's For Authors carefully before submission. Prospective authors should submit an electronic copy of their complete manuscript through the journal's Paper Submission System.

Please kindly specify the “Special Issue” under your manuscript title. The research field “Special Issue - Politics, Culture, and Society” should be selected during your submission.
