

Special Issue on Law and Politics

Call for Papers

Law and Politics examines the dynamic relationship between legal systems, political institutions, public governance, and the exercise of power in society. The field explores the development, interpretation, and implementation of laws, as well as their influence on political processes, public policy, human rights, constitutional governance, international relations, and social justice. By integrating perspectives from legal studies, political science, public administration, and international affairs, it advances understanding of how legal frameworks shape political decision-making, maintain social order, protect individual rights, and address contemporary global and national challenges.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles on exploring Law and Politics. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Constitutional law
- Administrative law
- Criminal law and justice
- Civil law
- International law
- Human rights law
- Comparative law
- Political theory
- Public policy and governance
- International relations
- Electoral systems and political processes
- Legislative studies
- Judicial politics
- Environmental law and policy
- Law and society
- Global governance and diplomacy

Authors should read over the journal's For Authors carefully before submission. Prospective authors should submit an electronic copy of their complete manuscript through the journal's Paper Submission System.

Please kindly specify the “Special Issue” under your manuscript title. The research field “Special Issue - Law and Politics” should be selected during your submission.

Special Issue Timetable:

Submission Deadline	November 30th, 2026
Publication Date	January 2027

Guest Editor:

For further questions or inquiries, please contact Editorial Assistant at papersubmissionyun@gmail.com

OJPS Editorial Office
ojps@scirp.org