

Special Issue on Social Psychology

Call for Papers

Social Psychology studies how individuals' thoughts, emotions and behaviors are influenced by social interactions, groups and cultural contexts. It examines topics such as attitudes, social perception, conformity, prejudice, relationships and group dynamics. The field integrates psychological theory and research methods to understand how people influence and are influenced by others in everyday social situations.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles on Social Psychology. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Social cognition and behavior
- Attitudes and persuasion
- Attitude formation and change
- Group dynamics and intergroup relations
- Prosocial behavior
- Aggression and antisocial behavior
- Social influence and conformity
- Interpersonal attraction and relationships
- Cultural and cross-cultural social psychology
- Emotion and social psychology
- Socialization and developmental psychology
- Personality and social behavior
- Stereotypes, prejudice and discrimination
- Self and identity processes
- Love and intimacy
- Diversity & inclusion
- Judgment & decision-making
- Applied social psychology
- Social psychology and health

Authors should read over the journal's For Authors carefully before submission. Prospective authors should submit an electronic copy of their complete manuscript through the journal's Paper Submission System.

Please kindly notice that the “Special Issue” under your manuscript title is supposed to be specified and the research field “Special Issue – Social Psychology” should be chosen during your submission.

According to the following timetable:

Submission Deadline	September 7th, 2026
Publication Date	November 2026

For publishing inquiries, please feel free to contact the Editorial Assistant at submission.entrance1@scirp.org

PSYCH Editorial Office